- Outcome of the Event – Marathwada Mitra Mandal's Shankarrao Chavan Law College through it Internal Quality Assurance Cell organized Interactive Session on Legal Research in context of NEP, NIRF and NAAC assessment. Events Witnessed Participation from various colleges Such as Navjeevan Law College, Nashik, Symbiosis Law School, Pune etc. On this occasion faculty participants along with students had the privilege To interact with Eminent Personality, Dr. Tarun Arora, Professor and Head, Department of Law, Dean, School of Legal Studies, CENTRAL UNIVERSITY OF PUNJAB. Hon'ble guest firstly explained the very purpose of research in Legal Education and it's Significance where that helped participant students to understand how research should be directed not by researcher's will but through truth.

Sir explained NEP has immense positive inputs to achieve potential growth in the ever demanding field of legal education. As expected, however, legal and medical education has been given their autonomy in regulation, but it's also true that these institutions cannot work in silos. If legal education does not integrate into the 'fourth vertical', or the General Education Council proposed to function under the aegis of the Higher Education Commission of India (HECI), set academic standards and replace bodies like the UGC as proposed in the NEP, law schools and Universities may lose out on funding and grants from the Government. It is also important for law schools to create accrediting body similar to the one that would be created under the NEP.

In legal education, the Bar Council of India continues to play a key role. However, there is a lot to desire, especially in raising the standards in local colleges where the quality and pool of the teaching faculty is at times dependent on the poor pay for law teachers, since brighter candidates move out to opt for higher paying institutions or alternative career options in the legal field.

Students and Faculty Participants were highly Motivated and inspired.
